Ninety percent of your child's music education will be self-taught. The teacher is an expert guide who will advise yourself or your child on the best way to accomplish this self-education. If your child does not practice at home, progress will be very slow. Schedule some practice time.

The new student always starts off with great enthusiasm, but this may begin to wane after a while. The parents must feed this enthusiasm with interest and encouragement. Dr. Suzuki says that parents should even "participate" in the lessons and the practice.

How much practice? An hour a day would be great, but that might be hard to schedule. Let's say about an hour a day, three days a week, or maybe a half hour every day. Make sure the student has a good place to practice, good lighting, an electric outlet nearby, and a music stand if it's needed. No visitors and no loud distractions.

P.S. Please call your teacher if you can't make your appointment.
